

Inclusive Education Symposium

3rd Annual

Target Audience: General & Special Education Teachers

Successful inclusive education occurs primarily through accepting, understanding, and attending to students' diverse needs with high quality instruction.

The ESC2 Inclusive Education Symposium will provide breakout sessions and a keynote address designed to provide general and special education teachers with the strategies and resources required to increase student academic and functional performance in an inclusive environment.

Justin Porter Ed.D.

State Supports for Students With Disabilities in the General Education Classroom

Participants will gain insight into the State's vision for inclusion and be introduced to two high leverage projects from TEA intended to support students with disabilities and struggling students in the general education setting.

Dr. Justin Porter holds a Doctor of Education degree from Lamar University in Beaumont, Texas and has had a lengthy career working with at-risk populations, including students with disabilities, in a variety of school districts across the state of Texas. His leadership experience began at the campus level and then moved into supervisory roles in varied central administration positions where he worked extensively with programs to serve students in special populations, as well as general curriculum and instructional programs. Currently, Dr. Porter serves as the Texas State Director for Special Education at the Texas Education Agency.
